

Life's Lessons for Easton Muro Hargrave

Enjoying simple pleasures will help you deal with hard times

Adding laughter at the right time can dry anyone's tears

Study your own mistakes before trying to correct other people

Try to see the bright side of things will help you through the darkest times

Ordinary people get noticed, extraordinary people never get forgotten

Never accept things the way they are if you know how to improve them

Making a difference in people's lives will make you a better person

Understanding someone else's point of view doesn't mean you agree with it

Reaching out your hand in love is better than retracting your hand in hate

Our trust in other people is the best way we show we respect them

Having fears is fine so long as you do what you can to get over them

Appreciating the little things in life must not prevent you from thinking big

Racing to the finish line is never as important as finishing the race

Give people a second chance only if you think they will use it wisely

Rules are sometimes meant to be broken the key is knowing what rules to break

Accept things you can't do by focusing on the things you do well

Venting your anger is fine so long as you point the heat in the right direction

Every lesson you learn in your life will teach you to be a better person

J. Mattes

7/6/15