

Life's Lessons for Zachary James Zulawski

Zero effort results in failure, all of your effort results in success
Accusing somebody without evidence makes you the guilty party
Catching a little bit on luck requires casting fate into the wind
Hearing someone's voice isn't the same as listening to them speak
All bad starts have the potential to lead to great ends if you try hard
Run away from something bad by running towards something good
You will never be perfect but that doesn't mean you shouldn't strive for perfection

Joys in your life will help you overcome sorrows if you let them
An error in judgement can be corrected if something is learned
Moving in the right direction means making the occasional wrong turn
Earning someone's trust is hard, losing someone's trust is easy
Stand up for what you believe in no matter if people tell you to sit down

Zoning out is alright so long as you come back into focus
Using words to express your feelings isn't as good as using actions
Laughter is a gift that is best shared with other people
All your dreams will come true but you must dream them first
Waiting for the right opportunity will cause it to slip away more quickly
Short term impulses can result in long term consequences
Keep trying harder even if you feel you might fail, it always works
In every event that happens in your life there is always a lesson to be learned
